

aspa

AUSTRALIAN SOCIAL POLICY
ASSOCIATION

AUSTRALIAN JOURNAL OF SOCIAL ISSUES

AJSI

VOLUME 49 NUMBER 3 – 2014

The management of sex offenders in the community: from policy to practice

Day, Carson,
Boni and Hobbs

Equipping child protection practitioners to intervene to protect children from cumulative harm: legislation and policy in Victoria, Australia

Broadley

What is a person-centred approach? Familiarity and understanding of individualised funding amongst carers in New South Wales

Broady

Local therapy facilitators working with children with developmental delay in rural and remote areas of western New South Wales, Australia: the 'Outback' service delivery model

Dew, Bulkeley,
Veitch, Bundy,
Lincoln, Glenn,
Gallego and Brentnall

*Perpetuating the problem: neoliberalism, commonwealth public policy and housing
affordability in Australia*

Nicholls

Anglo-Australian and non-Anglophone middle classes: 'foreign accent' and social inclusion

Colic-Peisker and Hlavac

Thank God you're here: the coming generation and their role in future proofing Australia from the challenges of population ageing

Churchill, Denny and Jackson

Editors

Boyd Hunter
Australian National University (ANU)

Julie Lahn
ANU

Associate Editors

Myra Hamilton
University of New South Wales
(UNSW)

Cameron Parsell
University of Queensland

Kelly Richards
Queensland University of Technology

Peter Smith
Monash University

Production Officer

Tracy Deasey
Australian Social Policy Association

Editorial Board

Janeen Baxter
University of Queensland

Bruce Bradbury
Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW

Bettina Cass
Social Policy Research Centre, UNSW

Alison McClelland
Productivity Commission

Bill Martin
University of Queensland

Jan Pakulski
University of Tasmania

Peter Whiteford
Crawford School, ANU

AJSI is a fully peer reviewed journal, indexed in the Social Sciences Citation Index (SSCI), ISI Thomson Scientific Index and by the Australian Public Affairs Information Service (APAIS).

All editorial matters should be directed to: ajsi@aspa.org.au

Publisher

The Australian Journal of Social Issues is published by the Australian Social Policy Association (ASPA). Subscriptions enquiries should be directed to publications@aspa.org.au.

Volumes 1-45 of the Journal were published by the Australian Council of Social Service (ACOSS). Volume 46 and volume 47, numbers 1 and 2, were published by ACOSS in collaboration with ASPA.

Copyright

This publication is copyright. Apart from fair dealing for the purpose of private study, research, criticism, or review, as permitted under the Copyright Act, persons and organisations wanting to reproduce material may obtain written permission from the publisher. Enquiries should be addressed to publications@aspa.org.au.

ISSN 0157-6321

Copyediting by textedit.com.au

Layout and typesetting by artmachine.com.au

Printing by Canprint

AJSI

The management of sex offenders in the community: from policy to practice	Andrew Day, Ed Carson, Nadia Boni and Gaynor Hobbs	249-264
Equipping child protection practitioners to intervene to protect children from cumulative harm: legislation and policy in Victoria, Australia	Karen Broadley	265-284
What is a person-centred approach? Familiarity and understanding of individualised funding amongst carers in New South Wales	Timothy Broady	285-307
Local therapy facilitators working with children with developmental delay in rural and remote areas of western New South Wales, Australia: the 'Outback' service delivery model	Angela Dew, Kim Bulkeley, Craig Veitch, Anita Bundy, Michelle Lincoln, Hannah Glenn, Gisselle Gallego and Jennie Brentnall	309-328
Perpetuating the problem: neoliberalism, commonwealth public policy and housing affordability in Australia	Seth Nicholls	329-347
Anglo-Australian and non-Anglophone middle classes: 'foreign accent' and social inclusion	Val Colic-Peisker and Jim Hlavac	349-371
Thank God you're here: the coming generation and their role in future proofing Australia from the challenges of population ageing	Brendan Churchill, Lisa Denny and Natalie Jackson	373-392
Information about authors		393-395
Notes for contributors		397-400

Information about authors

Nadia Boni (BSc, Hons. Psych) has been a researcher since graduating from the University of Adelaide in 1992. She spent over 15 years with the Australasian Centre for Policing Research (ACPR) and was awarded the Griffith University Prize for Excellence in Research on Improving Policing for Women. Since 2006, Nadia has been involved in several projects with the University of South Australia and Deakin University, including domestic violence perpetrator programs and sex offenders.

Jennie Brentnall is an Occupational Therapist with clinical and research experience in urban and rural areas with people with brain injury. Jennie is a PhD candidate and is currently working as a Research Assistant at the Faculty of Health Sciences, University of Sydney.

Karen Broadley has more than 20 years' experience working in the field of child and family welfare. This has included a number of roles within the Victorian Statutory Child Protection program, including Specialist Infant Protective Worker, High Risk Adolescent Consultant, Senior Practitioner, and other Leadership positions. Karen also works part-time at Child Abuse Prevention Research Australia, Monash Injury Research Institute, Monash University.

Timothy Broady is the Senior Research and Development Officer at Carers NSW. He has a background in psychological research, with interests in a wide variety of social issues, including family relationships and care, disability, and service provision.

Kim Bulkeley is an Occupational Therapist with 30 years' experience in community practice with people with a disability. Kim is a PhD candidate and is currently working as an Associate Lecturer and Project Officer in teaching and research roles with the University of Sydney.

Anita Bundy is Chair of Occupational Therapy in the Faculty of Health Sciences at the University of Sydney. A primary focus of her research is on delivery of therapy services for children with disabilities and their families.

Ed Carson is Professor of Social Policy in the School of Psychology, Social Work and Social Policy at the University of South Australia, and previously, prior to 2008, was the UNISA Dean of Graduate Studies.

Brendan Churchill is an Lecturer in the School of Social Sciences, University of Tasmania. His research interests include generations and intergenerational inequality over the life course using longitudinal data.

Val Colic-Peisker is sociologist / political scientist in the School of Global, Urban and Social Studies at RMIT University, Melbourne. Her research focuses on global migration and Australian ethnic relations. Her articles have appeared in Sociology, Journal of Sociology, International Migration Review, Ethnic and Racial Studies, Journal of Refugee Studies, Discourse and Society, and elsewhere.

Andrew Day (MSc, D.Clin.Psy.) is Professor in the School of Psychology at Deakin University. Before joining academia he was employed as a clinical psychologist in South Australia and the United Kingdom, having gained his Doctorate in Clinical Psychology from the University of Birmingham and his Masters in Applied Criminological Psychology from the University of London.

Lisa Denny is a demographer and PhD Candidate with the School of Social Sciences, University of Tasmania. Lisa's research interests include population ageing and the workforce; specifically, the implications contained within labour force participation, productivity and population replacement for government policymaking and economic development.

Angela Dew is a Sociologist with over 30 years' experience working with people with disability in government and non-government settings. Angela is a qualitative researcher, currently employed as a Post Doctoral Associate managing the Wobbly Hub and Double Spokes project with a focus on rural and remote workforce and access issues.

Gisselle Gallego is a clinical and health services researcher with skills and experience in undertaking and applying the results of economic evaluation to health services, the evaluation of health policy, knowledge translation and the use of qualitative methods in health economics and health services research. She is a researcher and community organiser with strong focus towards improving the health of disadvantage populations.

Hannah Glenn has worked as a Research Associate at the University of Sydney with research experience in rural and remote therapy service delivery with the Wobbly Hub project and clinical trials coordination at the Brain and Mind Research Institute. Hannah is currently completing a graduate degree in medicine at the Australian National University.

Jim Hlavac is a lecturer in Translation and Interpreting Studies in the School of Languages, Literatures, Cultures and Linguistics at Monash University, Melbourne. He has published widely in the field of translation and interpreting and in the related disciplines of multilingualism, contact linguistics, intercultural communication, pragmatics, and language maintenance/shift.

Gaynor Hobbs is a Forensic Psychologist who has worked for Corrective Services in WA for the past 15 years. She has held several roles in the treatment and management of offenders, in particular sexual offenders. She is currently completing her PhD at Deakin University.

Natalie Jackson is a Professor of Demography and former Director of the National Institute of Demographic and Economic Analysis at the University of Waikato. Natalie's research is focused on the different drivers and patterns of population ageing unfolding across and within Australia and New Zealand, and the consequences of these trends for education, the labour market, local, state and federal/national governments, and business in general.

Michelle Lincoln is the Deputy Dean in the Faculty of Health Sciences at the University of Sydney. Michelle's professional background is in Speech Pathology. Michelle has programs of research in rural allied health workforce development and service delivery and allied health education.

Seth Nicholls is a Lecturer in Politics and Public Policy, School of Social and Policy Studies, Flinders University. Dr Nicholls has worked extensively in academia, government and consulting for more than a decade. His research interests include Australian and international political economy, housing and climate change policy, ideational obstacles to the development of good policy, and the use of strategic decision making to achieve better policy outcomes in the public sector.

Craig Veitch is an Epidemiologist and health services researcher with a clinical background in radiation therapy. His research interests include rural health, health workforce, health care behaviour, colorectal cancer, community health services development, and health services evaluation.

AUSTRALIAN SOCIAL POLICY ASSOCIATION

The Australian Social Policy Association (ASPA) is a non-profit organisation and professional association of social policy researchers, educators, practitioners and policy-makers. ASPA promotes debate and increased understanding of social policy in Australia, and productive collaborations between those working and researching in social policy locally, across the Asia-Pacific region and internationally.

The Association's key objectives are to:

- support and foster research, practice and education in social policy in the university, non-government and government sectors,
- create a forum for the exchange of information and ideas about social policy in national and international contexts,
- facilitate and encourage higher degree research training in social policy,
- establish links with other Australian and international organisations that have an interest in social policy issues.

The Association provides its members with access to:

- publications,
- seminars,
- workshops and conferences,
- cross-sectoral networking opportunities,
- higher degree research forums and networks.

ASPA seeks to support the community of social policy researchers and policy makers in their efforts to understand and contribute to the promotion of human well-being.

Australian Social Policy Association,

Email: enquiries@aspa.org.au

Web: www.aspa.org.au